

Loss Prevention Consultancy Ltd complies fully with the enhanced information and data protection requirements as imposed by the EU's General Data Protection Regulations. The company is presently registered with the UK Information Commissioner's Office Reg No: ZA1600351 and on renewal will register under the GDPR. The company operates worldwide but does not export or transfer data from the UK to any country outside the EEA .

Other than as stated below in respect of expert witness instructions, the Company does not collect, store or process any form of personal information other than that which might be related to email and postal address and work telephone numbers of its clients. Such data is only retained for as long as is necessary for us to fulfil our legal obligations of complete the assignments entrusted to us.

The only 'personal information' we store is that related to those of our clients who have provided us with home telephone numbers or addresses or to information about individuals which may be contained in witness and/or other statements provided to us use in litigation actual or contemplated. As such information may sometimes include personal data this is not retained when a matter has been resolved but is destroyed securely when the matter with which it was connected is finally resolved. The data concerned is not processed but accessed only from paper copies of statements or statements in portable document format.

We do not email any kind of sales or marketing information unless this is first specifically requested. We delete all information related to clients if we have had no contact with them for 24 months.
